The U.S. Postal Service started as the USPS in 1775 with the mission to deliver mail to all communities in the U.S. Quickly, the Postal Service grew to become an important part of the economy, including as a carrier of information and a provider of financial services. Today, its mission is to provide reliable and convenient postal services—and create an honest, efficient and accountable postal service— one whose success is measured not only by the volume of mail delivered, but also by its capacity to change, innovate and meet the needs of an increasingly mobile and connected America. The USPS.com website serves as a window into this complex, fast-paced, dynamic world of the Postal Service. Follow the Postal Service on Twitter. This database can be used to import US ZIP codes into Microsoft Excel for analysis. The list is downloadable at the bottom of the page. Download ZIP Code List Data Files (.txt) A: The USPS has a detailed listing of ZIP codes: which may be viewed by State and/or County. A: I had the same question and found this great deal.
