Or maybe that's not even the problem. Maybe you just didn't like the way it came out. In this course you'll learn the tools and techniques that will allow you to correct, manipulate, and enhance your photographs, and you'll learn how to use them while looking at digital images. You'll begin with choosing the best lens for a scene, then you'll learn how to maximize the use of your camera's auto mode. Once you've figured out what your camera's auto mode is doing for you, you'll learn how to set it to a manual mode. After that you'll learn how to use the equipment you have to capture crisp, sharp images and how to work with raw files to ensure you'll never have to worry about what your camera has recorded. As an intermediate to advanced photographer you'll have the knowledge to learn how to manipulate your images in the most useful ways. All of the editing tools are done in different ways from standard photo editing software, and they use a different color palette. They are visually separated to allow you to use more than one tool at a time. This course also allows you to choose from an enormous number of options with your editing so that you can create your very own effect. If you are unfamiliar with the many ways to use a tool, this course will show you the correct way to use them. Photoshop is a robust tool, and in fact, the fact that it has so many features as an 'advanced' tool makes it a good starting point for photographers who are not sure what to do with images. This course allows you to try it, as this is the goal of most of these lessons, but you're also encouraged to check out tutorials that work in conjunction with the lessons. If you're looking to make a career out of editing images, or just like making some cool images, you owe it to yourself to check out this course. The course is graded on a scale of 1-10 and you'll receive a certificate of completion once you've completed the lessons. Each lesson has a detailed walkthrough of the tools and techniques

I have heard that the UK is growing tired of the US dollar. US dollars have lost more than 80% of their value over the past decade - I believe this has something to do with the fact that US is using their power to bully other nations into using the dollar. Or maybe the US dollar isn't real currency anymore? Given the cross-border reserve currency status of the US dollar, it's pretty hard to buy foreign currencies. However, if there is no US dollars to be had, then how else do foreigners interact with the US? Tax evasion? What will happen to the US dollar if all countries start to trade their dollars for foreign currencies instead? My random thoughts are to use the Q-tip to change the fee or tax rate on goods going across the ocean and to change my paper currency to something different. The paper currency makes it pretty hard for governments to track every transaction and I can trade the paper currency at my leisure. I suppose I could trade the currency in place or just keep it and wait to trade it. There is no "we" to be tired of the USD. Remember, the USD is just a bunch of paper currency with arbitrary foreign exchange value. That's it. Everyone has to do what they want with the currency they have, including converting it to foreign currency to trade as they wish. When the USD becomes the loss leader currency (a currency that has declining value) then people will react to it and look for something that has a stronger value. - Mr.MadScientistOct 21 '10 at 3:12 @Mr.MadScientist No one is looking for a stronger currency than the USD. The problem is that there is no more USD to trade. - I am not even a WizardNov 2 '10 at 8:24 I agree with Brad in that the United States is only as "strong" as the dollar it issues is worth. But to set that sentiment aside, who is to say the value of the dollar, or any other fiat currency, will not continue to decline, in which case no one should be buying the stuff or holding the stuff for any reason? I've always been reminded of the Great Depression in the US when people stopped buying things and prices of everything skyrocketed. Bottom line is that the US has a lack of good manufacturing and is under-employed and we have incredible debt. Those two things don't mix well together. Letting the US
