Battle of Britain, August - October 1940 At dawn on August 8, 1940, German troops crossed on the offensive against the British troops defending the British Isles. The capture by Germany of the "fox from the island" was carried out in several stages. On August 8, German troops attacked southern England with the forces of the 1st and 10th Panzer Groups and the Air Force and the next day captured the city of Plymouth, completing the breakthrough of the defense of the "Foxes from the Island". At the same time, the 2nd Army Group and the Air Force launched an offensive against London from the south.
